MEMORANDUM ORDER

This District Court's random assignment system has just delivered the captioned action to this Court's calendar via removal from the Circuit Court of Cook County's Chancery Division, with federal subject matter jurisdiction having been invoked by defendant DePaul University ("DePaul") under the Class Action Fairness Act. That assignment has triggered (as always) this Court's issuance of an initial scheduling order, but one aspect of the Complaint has also led to the contemporaneous issuance of this memorandum order.

As may be perfectly appropriate under state court practice, the Complaint couples the plaintiffs' pleading of evidence with a vengeance (its 134 paragraphs occupy just over 56 pages) with a substantial number of exhibits whose aggregate bulk exceeds that of the Complaint itself by a substantial margin. If such a filing had been attempted in this District Court as an original matter, there is no question that this Court would have stricken it as noncompliant with Fed. R. Civ. P. ("Rule") 8(a), which calls for (1) "a short and plain statement of the grounds for the court's jurisdiction" and (2) "a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief."

That poses something of a dilemma. Pleading in the federal courts is of course controlled by the Rules, but plaintiffs' counsel can scarcely be faulted for conforming to state court practice in a lawsuit filed there in the first instance. All the same, this Court is loath to thrust on defense counsel the task of pleading in response to such an extraordinarily prolix Complaint that would not have passed muster if brought here in the first instance.

Accordingly plaintiffs' counsel are ordered to file, as promptly as possible, a self-contained Amended Complaint that more reasonably meets the Rule 8(a) standards,¹ after which defense counsel are ordered to file a responsive pleading within 21 days of their receipt of that Amended Complaint.² That task on both sides should readily be capable of completion before the initial status hearing, which (as always) this Court orders to be

² Even though the legal effect of an amended complaint is to supersede the original, in this instance the state court version can effectively serve the function of a detailed bill of particulars.
